Forecast For Highland & Eilean Siar
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Tuesday 02 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mostly dry but turning cloudier later.

Today:
After a largely dry and fine start to the day it will turn increasingly cloudy from the south into the afternoon. Scattered wintry showers and sunny spells in the far north. Feeling cold in the easterly winds. Maximum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Tonight:
It will stay mostly dry into this evening with cloudy skies in the south but clearer in the north. Chance of some sleet and snow arriving by morning. Minimum temperature -3 deg C (27 deg F).

Wednesday:
Outbreaks of sleet and snow will push across the region tomorrow, with the best chance of dry drier conditions in the far north, feeling cold. Maximum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Wintry showers or longer spells of rain, sleet and snow over the coming days. Feeling cold in easterly winds.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.